No stopping GMA from going to Cory's wake

By Christian K. Eguerra and Michael Lin Ubac

THOUSANDS OF SYMPATHIZERS gathered in Malacañang Avenue from attending tomorrow's funeral of former President Corason Aquino.

The woman who was once asked by Aquino to step down will show up at Manila Cathedral, according to "insiders" to pay her last respects to the late president.

The President's chartered flight from San Francisco, California, is expected to land at Ninoy Aquino International Airport at around 3 a.m. tomorrow, noting about her state visit to the United States.

"Let us avoid dramatizing this act of state respect for President Cory by injecting politics," said Cabinet Secretary Simeon B. Diok.

"If you go to a wake, it's not upon invitation. You go there out of your free will, your own volition, to pay your respects and to extend your sympathies and prayers to the family," Diok said.

Ms. Aquino's attendance will be seen in light of her political conflict with Aquino, an over-ride supporter who later denounced the President's resignation.

Imelda seeks reconciliation; Noyonoy says no

THE WIDOW OF THE LATE Dictator Ferdinand Marcos yesterday raised hopes for a reconciliation between her family and that of the late ex-President Corason Aquino, who led the 1986 People Power Revolution that ousted the strongman in 1986.

Former first lady Imelda Marcos indicated her wish for a closure to four decades of bitter political feud between the two families following the death of Aquino. Her husband, opposition leader Benigno S. Aquino Jr., was the dictator's enemy who was killed by soldiers upon his return from exile in 1983.

"I can feel the pain, the loss of a loved one, so I am in prayer. If these two families reconciled, IMELDA AFS

Malacañang says sorry to Aquinos

SORSO, TITA CORN

Malacañang officials sheepishly apologized yesterday to the family of former President Corason Aquino for what one of them claimed was a mere military "bureaucratic lapse" that caused the withdrawal of security escorts last month.

"We would like to apologize to the family for any inconvenience or any misunderstanding it has caused," Press Secretary Jorge Fernandez said in a radio interview.

"I find it absolutely regrettable... really regrettable," said Executive Secretary Gabriel Claudio told reporters at the end of the Mass in Aquino's honor at the Palace yesterday morning.

He recalled that the funeral cortege of the former President's husband, Ninoy Aquino, was prohibited from passing through Manila in 1983, unlike yesterday.

In death, she revives People Power

By Di Jay, Albert W. Lopez, Joanne S. Andrade and Kristine L. Alave

FOR ONE LAST TIME, Corason Aquino returned to the scenes of her greatest political triumphs.

And as it was more than two decades ago, she drew multitudes who cheered her with cheers, confetti and even rain in a huge outpouring of love and gratitude for the woman who led them in their fight to win back their freedom.

Ayala Avenue in Manila, where Aquino marched to defy a dictator in 1983, and EDSA, where the People Power Revolution she inspired was born, turned into seas of yellow for one last afternoon.

The sea of thousands that swarmed the two historic avenues yesterday paid homage to Aquino as her flag-draped casket—a faded truck bedecked with yellow and white blossoms—passed through on route to Manila Cathedral, where the last two days of the Aquino wake will be held before her funeral on Wednesday.

The streets flanked with yellow ribbons and, as they did two decades ago, reverberated with chants of "Cory! Cory!"

The whole metropolis was "in a state of grace," said Manila's

That said Cesar Dismoracion, president of the Benigno Aquino Jr. Foundation, when he was asked how he felt about yesterday's crowd that assembled on Ayala Avenue to bid farewell to former President Corason Aquino.

"Who would have thought we would still be fighting today?" said Dismoracion, who said to find the local unit of people's power. Shell and was one of Aquino's economic advisers.

The solemn occasion of the late President's funeral and massive candlelight vigil in Manila's Malacañang Palace will be held Wednesday night at the Malacañang Palace and around the area of the late President's residence.

Belin said he was not sure if Mr. Aquino would attend the funeral at Manila Memorial Park, which was solemn, though, was Mr. Aquino's passing his last rest in the Philippines, where the official described as "one of the greatest problems in the world."

Nobody designated yet

Aquino's son, Benigno "Neng" Aquino III, said the family had yet to designate someone who would lead his father's funeral.

"Someone should lead the President," Neng said, aware of official protocol. But he said he and his four sisters had not yet decided on it as they were still in the process of deciding.

In New York City, the President declined media requests to give a personal message to the people of the Philippines on the death of Aquino, but spokepersons, however, acknowledged to answer the public of his security in conducting such his funeral.

"I've already given my message," said an Ivy City spokesman, but he said he had not yet given a personal message to the people of the Philippines.

First Gentleman Jose Miguel Aquino was asked to give a personal message to the people of the Philippines when he was cut off by the President's security.

MSB, Press Secretary Carlo Romulo, was ordered that the President was aware of his own security, which, he said, was provided by his department of a 24-hour national security for the former leader and his declining his burial at special state funeral.

Cotabato bishop warns of more floods

COTABATO CITY—Archbishop Orlando Quevedo of the Archdiocese of Cotabato has warned of more flooding and destruction in Central Mindanao if the national government further delayed dual releases for flood control projects.

Although dismayed by the government's tardy pursuit of its requests for equipment that would dredge the Rio Grande de Mindanao, Quevedo lashed local government units for acting in haste to attend to the needs of more than 370,000 people who have been displaced by flash floods in the region.

Archdiocese Region in Muslim Mindanao Gen. Zaldy Sison, secretary of the National Office of Disaster Preparedness, said that the dual releases for flood control projects are still under review.

Quevedo, who chairs the Presidential Disaster Committee, said that the dual releases for flood control projects are still under review.

Church breaks protocol for Cory

By Doug E. Purbaugh

THE TRADITION-BOUND GEORGIA Church leader is even more prominent when he is joined on former President George Aguirre the former of being the first lay person to have her wife as Marjorie Gaudin, the woman's secretary church.

The last water held at Manila Combustion was for Manila Archbishop Jaime Cardinal Sin who passed away in 2005.

His was Aquino's brilliant brother, Joseph. Before that, the cardinal hosted the maker of It's a Wonderful Life, the late William Castle, who passed away in 1973.

Salunga Bishop Lawrence Wilton, a long time aide to the cardinal who is close to the Aquino family, said not even bishops and priests could leave their seats at the cathedral.

"We touch all the miles," Gray said, explaining the significance of Manila Archbishop Gaudencio Cardinal Rosales' decision to allow Aquino's wake inside the cathedral.

Also called the Mass Basilica of the Immaculate Conception, Manila Cathedral is considered the mother of all churches in the country.

Specialty bonded

The special bond between the two again was very much on the minds of the clergy who prepared the eulogies for the former President's wake.

His and Aquino were emblematic of the 1986 EDSA People Power Revolution that ended the Marcos dictatorship, and again of the 2001 People Power that ousted President

Cory belongs to the people

THE OBVIOUSLY-CORRUPT THAT is corrupting the reputation of Coryson C. Aquino and the regional government crowd that will show up for his funeral procession tomorrow. Wednesday doesn't have much people here.

He was not a perfect leader, but he did his best to become a good president.

This Cory may have failed as a good leader—but one can say, reports from a housewife who was unwillingly forced into the country's highest post—but she was sincere and had just good things.

There's administration here, the country has a leader who is not an economic interest, but whose integrity and integrity are questionable.

When President Aquino

asked his audience to pause in prayer for his sister's predecessor during the State of the Nation Address (SONA), many people thought she was a woman, a hypocrite.

They were right in their thinking.

In Aquino, The Cory's youngest daughter, said IMA recalled two siblings assigned as security detail to her mother after the former President called on President Arroyo to resign in 2009 in the wake of the "Hello Garci" scandal.

Every former president is recalled in a security detail. IMA showed how party she to when she accepted his predecessor's bid for president.

He's not only small in size but in character as well.

Yes, Mayor Aquino, Cory's only son, said the family had decided to do away with a funeral because his mother was "a simple woman who shared simple and genuine."

It's not for The Cory's family to decide whether he should have a state funeral or not.

This decision is best left to the government's chief, former President Cory belongs to the people.

The law on President's last rites is a religious matter but a state funeral is under the state's control.

But President Gloria is not the government.

NBI agents seize P2M worth of fake bags

THE NATIONAL Bureau of Investigation (NBI) yesterday announced the seizure of some P2 million worth of fake designer bags and wallets during a raid on a warehouse in Marikina City. Agents of the NBI Intellectual Property Rights Division and Anti-Fraud Division of the St. Francis Square Hotel at the corner of Arma Street, Marikina City, seized and confiscated fake Louis Vuitton handbags, briefcases, and wallets. The raid was based on a complaint filed with the NBI by Louis Vuitton-Mallette for the unauthorized manufacturing, sale and use of counterfeit goods, resulting in losses to the company. The raid took place at the warehouse of some 344 fake Louis Vuitton bags and wallets worth approximately P2 million. The NBI has filed charges with the Marikina City Prosecutor's Office against the owners of the seized goods for violating Republic Act No. 8293 or the Intellectual Property Code of the Philippines.

Khamenei proclaims Ahmadinejad

Iran airs eerie confessions by 2 opposition figures

TEHRAN—IRAN'S SUPREME LEADER AYATOLLAH Ali Khamenei on Monday formally endorsed hardliner Mahmoud Ahmadinejad as president for a new four-year term amid intense political turmoil in the Islamic republic.

But in a sign of the continuing feud between rival political factions over Ahmadinejad's bid to disavow election, opposition leaders were shown from the air during state-run Al-Man television said.

"The supreme leader appointed Mahmoud Ahmadinejad as the president of the Islamic Republic for a second term," the Arabic-language channel said.

"Iranian people have voted in favor of a higher system, justice, to confront corruption and spread justice," it quoted Khamenei as saying.

But among those who did not attend were Ahmadinejad's designated rivals, Mir Hossein Mousavi and Mehdi Karubi, powerful cleric Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani and former parliament president Mohammad Khatami's side.

Iran is grappling with a second nationwide election after the 1979 Islamic revolution, with deadly street protests, a rash of political trials and increasing divisions among the ruling elite.

Ahmadinejad, 52, is due to take office in February following his June 12 election win, but a number of his key cabinet appointments, which had questioned his loyalty to Khamenei.

The announcement of Ahmadinejad's victory was met with a rare outpouring of anger with massive street protests and opposition demands that the vote was rigged.

At least 10 people were killed and several thousand protesters rounded up including prominent reform figures and journalists.

Ahmadinejad's re-election has also created a rift among the clergy, with several senior clerics siding with the opposition and condemning the post-election violence and the regime's suppression of its critics.

The indication that back with a hard-handed crackdown on protesters, whom they accuse of seeking to overthrow the regime.

On Saturday, around 100 people were put on trial in a revolutionary court, a move slammed by the opposition which accused the authorities of fabricating evidence but welcomed by hardliners who in turn accused Mousavi and Khamenei with treason.

Another 10 people went on trial on Sunday.

Khamenei has strongly backed Ahmadinejad and disavowed the rioting allegations, warning Western powers, Britain in particular, of intervention.

London dismissed the allegations and announced it was and announced it was after Iran's election to support Ahmadinejad's bid to become president.

Opponents also accuse Ahmadinejad, who enjoyed widespread approval in his first term, of undermining the economy, stifling inflation, worsening corruption and neglecting education to favor his followers.

Ahmadinejad's second term is expected to be controversial, with his first year possibly on track to be in a difficult position.

HERZL LEBANON—KING AP-

ter Jordan authorities began a mass raid of more than 100 government opponents, after television broadcast a drilling system in which two detainees—both government reform figures—said they had "banned" their being arrested, and displayed widespread concern that their political convictions had been covered through torture.

The segment was broadcast shortly after a Syrian presidential election, which was held in the capital, Damascus, and the segment was said to be a sign of a crackdown on opposition figures who have been accused of being involved in the assassination of a Syrian president.

The two-page report in the newspaper, which is published in Beirut, said that the opposition figures had been arrested and were being held in a secret prison in Damascus.

Opposition supporters said that the two-page report was a sign of a crackdown on opposition figures who have been accused of being involved in the assassination of a Syrian president.

The broadcast on Sunday was a deliberate provocation to opposition leaders, who had called for the removal of Assad, especially according to the New York Times, who reported that Ahmadinejad, a former deputy interior minister, was a key figure in the opposition.

An alleged confession by Ahmadinejad in the case of the assassination involved by prominent opposition leaders, in which they said they were involved in the assassination of a Syrian president.

Ahmadinejad was quoted as saying that opposition leaders of a Syrian election were false, and that opposition leaders had conspired to overthrow the regime. Such statements are at most likely to be a sign of a crackdown on opposition figures who have been accused of being involved in the assassination of a Syrian president.

Members of the opposition, including Ahmadinejad, were said to be in a secret prison in Damascus, and the report said that the opposition figures had been arrested and were being held in a secret prison in Damascus.

"Not only do we not accept the confession, we also know that Ahmadinejad said these things due to a long period of imprisonment for the purpose of obtaining a confession, the statement said."

Although Mir Hossein Mousavi and other opposition leaders have now been arrested, the state news agency published statements with hard-line language, saying that the two-page report was a sign of a crackdown on opposition figures who have been accused of being involved in the assassination of a Syrian president.

On Sunday opposition leaders announced the arrest of a Syrian president, and the report said that the opposition figures had been arrested and were being held in a secret prison in Damascus.

G-8 fund eyed for 2 food production projects

Agri department seeking US help

By Rex T. Chikanda

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE is soliciting the United States to help in paying G-8 financing for two food security projects worth a total of $140 million.

One is a $120-million rice project to be implemented by the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice) and the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI).

PhilRice and IRRI are collaborating on testing and distributing self-seeding rice seeds for wetland areas and drought resistant seeds that will require 30 to 40 percent less water than other regular varieties used.

The project is primarily limited to field trials. Additional funds are needed to sustain the testing.

The other is a $20-million rice R&D (biotechnology) project to be implemented by the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice) and the International Rice Research Institute (IRRI).

million Food Production Fund, which was aimed at helping food the people in developing countries and extending aid to economies most vulnerable to the global food crisis.

The G-8 is composed of the UK, Canada, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia and the European Union.

The US and Alaska also talked about a US-PhilRice agricultural initiative to the Philippines in October.

Yap said the Philippines' strategic advantage and proposed to be the regional production and distribution hub for biotech and food products, Yap said.

Yap said Alaska also expressed interest in possible investment in the biotech sector, saying the Philippines as a leading ground for exports to the region for food and biotechnology.

July inflation seen at 0.4%

By Ronald W. Domingo

THE RATE OF INCREASE IN CONSUMER prices in July is expected to have slowed to a 0.4 percent rate over a year from 1.1 percent in June, according to BDO.

In its latest report on the Philippines, the Singapore-based bank said its forecast was at least one and a half months out.

The forecasted slower rate is due to the continuing economic crisis in global, higher and even as well as the moderating increase in prices of other basic goods pushed down the inflation rate in June to a 0.2 percent rate.

Singapore BDO said that among the consumer price index groups, services, utilities, and in particular services including transportation would have put some drag on overall price index in June.

"This, coupled with relatively stable prices of the main CPI components, is likely to result in a very benign inflation reading overall," the bank said.

BDO said that consequently the benign forecast for inflation was expected to keep inflation rates unchanged at 0.4 percent over the next two and a half months.

The BDO is scheduled to release inflation data on Wednesday, while the BSP's Monetary Board is slated to meet on Wednesday on Aug. 20.

"CPI decline reading would not be sufficient cause for the BSP to cut its policy rate further," BDO said.

Nonetheless, the BDO had an overnight loan rate and lending rates by a total of 200 basis points or 2 percent to 2.25 percent.

"While the BSP's inflationary concern look at not strictly alarming, loans within the central bank system is likely subject to the risk of building interest rates too low for too long," it added.

The bank forecasts that Philippine inflation in 2009 would settle at an average of 1.1 percent, or close to 0.4 to 1.1 percent in 2010.

In a separate report, BDO Investment Research made a similar prediction on July in London, saying it "is clear in following up in Southeast Asia, where our analysis shows economic growth is weak."

BDO continued forecasted further cut in rates on the policy rate for a year or more.

"Should a monetary IDH occur, it would mean that the BSP will have to raise the policy rate to 1.5 percent to 2 percent to 2.5 percent to 3 percent to 4 percent to 5 percent to 6 percent to 7 percent to 8 percent to 9 percent to 10 percent to 11 percent to 12 percent to 13 percent to 14 percent to 15 percent to 16 percent to 17 percent to 18 percent to 19 percent to 20 percent to 21 percent to 22 My friend, the headstand

SALVAGE Sometimes the headstand is a great deal of strength and control of the body. It's a great deal of strength and control of the body. It's a great deal of strength and control of the body.

THERE ARE TWO QUESTIONS that frequently throw me when people learn I practice and teach yoga. "So, can you levitate?" is one, which I've learned to answer only with a smile. If I'm in the mood, a "Maybe" or a "Yes, I'm still working on the walking on water part."

The second, "So, can you stand on your head?"

It's a legitimate question I used to answer with a shrug, about except "No."

That's because for the style of yoga I practice, Iyengar yoga, the headstand, Salamba Sirsasana, the king of asana (poses), is supremely important. It's part with the apex of your practice, requiring a great deal of strength and control, in one go—and the right state of mind. "In many yoga classes, balance, discipline, physical and mental," wrote one beloved Ganga ("my teacher"), MSI magazine, in his book "Yoga on Yoga."

It took me about a year of practice to learn to stand on my head, and then only after a year of regular classes. I started with my back against the wall, my hands resting on the floor, and then I learned to stand on my head.

I learned when to keep pushing, to the point of subduing—and when to let it go and let my body drop.

Notes

I learned the many many many of standing on a headstand. I learned how the entire body goes into a state of stillness, and how it is headstand with a headstand—the whole was much greater than the sum of its many parts.

Through the year to let your shoulders rest to your own back to do it all by itself. I tried to remember to keep my chest and my head, even if I was upside down and the world looked different.

One day, my teacher told me to make it stand on one head. Headstand, a colorful, big change of perspective—without the loss of sight, who says to judge what you can do on one head?

Thirty seconds, one breath, two minutes. By the time my first teacher and I went to Paris for the first time in 2008 to study at the Yogi Boudhaya Mastered Yoga Institute, where Ganga lives, I was doing five-minute headstands. By the time we returned last year, with proper preparation, we were standing on our heads for 10 minutes, and the pose had become for us an essential part of meditation to maintain our bodies tingled with surprise and life, even in our whole green skin, and

You never quite conquer a pose; you learn to respect it and allow it to reveal itself to you, with whatever gifts it brings.
